Comment Reasons:

Comment: It's a no brainer paying £138 million on whitegates site or £85 million on original school site.

There are people who use Whitegates site every day, such as people exercising, children playing, football, dog walkers.

The extra cash the council has available if built on original site could be used elsewhere in East Dunbartonshire.

And if they couldn't build the other school at Whitegates how can they now build a high school All of a sudden, surely its going to then need ongoing repairs in the future with considerable risk of flooding, which is more money?
